The government said the plot unfolded this way: An FBI agent in Rochester, Bruce Mouw, posed as an inter-ested party and met with the three suspects Sept. 15 in St. Louis. Apparently the reason the meeting took place in St. Louis was that Mr. Mendenhall had been staying with a relative in the area and that Mr. Schmidt had

Dayan Asserts Talks Tied to Sinai Only

By William Claiborne

JERUSALEM, Oct. 5 (WP) - Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said today that the purpose of next week's Middle East peace oegotiations in Washington will be to reach a separate treaty with Egypt, and that the outcome is not dependent on progress on the West Bank and Gaza Strip utonomy issue.

"We are going to negotiate o peace treaty between Egypt and Israel, and that is the main issue," Mr. Dayan said upon leaving here for New York, where he will address the United Nations General Assembly on Monday. He was to meet today with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and return Washingtoo for the peace talks scheduled for Thursday.

There has been some apprehension here that the Egyptian delegation might attempt to link the Sinai Peninsula issue with the future of the West Bank and Gaza, thereby jeopardizing the conclusion of a separate peace treaty within three months, as called for in the Camp David summit

Two-Element Talks

Mr. Dayan, in an airport oews conference, sought to dispel that notion, saying there are "two main elements" to be discussed in Washington: the "nature of peace" between Israel and Egypt, meaning the cormalization of relations, and the details of the military agreements at the Camp David summit, including the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Sinai.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman later repeated Israel's understanding of the "bilateral" nature of the Washington talks, saying, "It is his [Mr. Dayan's] understanding there is oo connection between the progress of the bilateral talks with Egypt and progress on negotiations over [the West Bank] and Gaza Strip."

Some senior government officials have been quoted as saying that members of the Israeli delegation is prepared to take up the West Bank autocomy issue in Washington, because they assume the Egyptians will ask for parallel talks oo the Sinai and West Bank issues.

Israel correspondents in Cairo report that they are being told by Egyptian officials that there is a linkage between the two issues, and that Egypt bopes that even if Jordan does not join the peace process, Israel will take some unilateral steps to implement Palestinian autonomy.

Acting Foreign Minister Butros Ghali was quoted in Ma'ariv, the He-

By Don Oberdorfer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (WP) -President Carter, in a concession to nuclear-weapons laboratories and the Pentagon, reportedly has or-dered U.S. negotiators to seek a three-year comprehensive nuclear test han treaty rather than the fiveyear pact the United States had previously proposed.

The Russians, who have exessed irritation at the slow pace of negotiations, are reported to have responded with bafflement at the latest U.S. switch in signals. A shift in the Carter administration position had been rumored since early summer, when opposing forces within the executive branch began reacting to Mr. Carter's May 20 decision to propose a five-year, absolute test ban at Geneva. Strong Reaction

The reaction was so strong from the directors of the nuclear-weapons laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M., and Livermore, Calif., and from some elements of the U.S. military, that close observers believe the entire treaty proposal was up in the air.

Mr. Carter's recent decision-making included a determination to continue on the course of a comprehensive ban on nuclear tests, underground as well as in the atmosre, and a decision to seek 10 monitoring stations in each country as a means of verifying compliance with the treaty, according to the

Latin Neighbors Watch Somoza's Fate

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 5 (NYT) — The shock waves of the Nicaraguan conflict are being felt throughout Central America.

The Nicaraguan airline's ticket office in San Salvador was bombed this week. The Nicaraguan amhassador to Guatemala City has been murdered by lefust guerrillas there. About 80 Nicaraguan rebels are being held by the Honduras Army. while Nicaraguan rebels in Panama and Costa Rica openly prepare a new offensive against the dictatorship of Nicaragua's president, Gen. Anastasio Somoza.

Rightist military regimes in Central America are worried. Guerrilla trade-union and peasant movements in the region, on the other hand, have been encouraged to step up their campaigns for reform or even revolution

The impact of the challenge to the Somoza family dynasty is all the greater because of the tradition-ally dominating role of Gen. Somoza in Central America. Long considered Washington's "pro-consul" in the region, Gen. Somoza has unashamedly interfered in the internal affairs of his neighbors, in-variably to bolster military dictatorships and weaken reform move-

In reality, the nature of the guer-rilla struggle in Nicaragua is very different from that in El Salvador. The Salvadoran and Guatemalan guerrillas have nevertheless begun terrorist acts "in solidarity" with the Sandinistas, clearly hoping to share some of the popularity enjoyed throughout Central America by the Nicaraguan fighters.

More Worrying

More worrying to the military regimes of the region, however, is the influence of the Nicaraguan struggle on growing popular movements inside their countries.

In El Salvador, with most political parties weakened by years of repression, the main opposition to the military regime headed by Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero comes from a broad-based coalition called the Popular Revolutionary Bloc. which includes peasant, teacher, student and squatter groups. Honduras, Nicaragua's immediate neighbor to the north, has little industry, but it has a strong peasant movement linked, as in El Salvador, to progressive sectors of the church. The movement has been pressing the military regime

Censure Motion Voted Down in Paris Assembly

PARIS, Oct. 5 (AP) — The government early today defeated a Socialist motion in Parliament to censure Prime Minister Raymond Barre for his economic policies.

The Socialists motion received only 199 of the 246 votes needed to carry it in the National Assembly. Socialist Leader François Mitterrand presented the motion, accusing the government of slowing eco-nomic growth, increasing inflation to its present 11 percent level and raising unemployment to 5.5 per-cent of the work force.

He demanded shorter work hours and more government support for faltering enterprises in which jobs were threatened. Mr. Barre replied that the gov-erament would continue to seek a balanced hudget at the expense of full employment. He listed his government's priorities as: Eco-nomic independence, beating inflation, holding salary increases down to 10 percent a year, and modernizing industry.

He said that these measures would lead to full employment.

Egypt's New Government Faces Tough Assignment By Thomas W. Lippman

Anwar Sadat yesterday installed a new government to work with a new majority party and a new military leadership to steer the country into the future.

Egypt is moving swiftly into a new era. In Mr. Sadat's vision, it is an era of peace after 30 years of war, of economic liberalism after two decades of stangaing Socialwar, of economic liberalism after two decades of stagnating Social-ism, of confronting domestic chal-lenges after years of neglect, and of nationalism, in which Egypt is put-ting its own interests above the ide-ological hanner of part Achies ological banners of pan-Arabism. Some political observers here are skeptical about whether the new government is equipped to fulfill this vision or to bandle the delicate psychological and political transitinn Egypt now faces. Though billed as a Cabinet of younger tech-nocrats and academics, the new grouping consists mostly of men over fifty who are products of the system they have been assigned to change.

If the new government fails to achieve the reforms that are admittedly needed and does not meet the popular expectations raised by peace, the disappointment could spark popular unrest. Sadat Chairs Meeting

The choice of Mr. Khalil was symbolically appropriate because be twice resigned from the Cabinet of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser in policy disputes with Mr. Nasser's pro-Soviet advisers, a period of Egyptian history Mr. Sadat is doing all he can to discredit. Later Mr. Khalil was first secretary of the Arab Socialist Union. That was the only legal party under Mr. Nasser, but Mr. Sadat has dismantled it. The ASU's handsome building on the Nile has been rented out to foreign banks and the country's domi-nant pobtical organization now is Mr. Sadat's new National Democratic Party.

"With the signing of the peace accords," Mr. Sadat said in a speech Monday marking the anniversary of Mr. Nasser's death, "we are beginning a new era which will witness a radical change in our internal affairs. Our main objective is to create a new society to achieve prosperity and to relieve the sufferings of the masses."

All this presumes that peace with Israel is an accomplished fact, and the Egyptians are behaving as if it were. The task now facing the government and the party is to do something about Egypt's crushing

French ambassador to Lebanon for the second time in two days, as well as with other foreign envoys. The meetings followed yesterday's joint appeal by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and the president of the Security Council, French ambassador Jacques Lefrette, for an immediate cease-fire in Lebanon.

Informed sources in Lebanon said that the French had proposed a settlement of the crisis through the interposition of Lebanese Army units between the Syrian and right-ist combatants in Beirut.

But the rightist Voice of Lebanon said without confirmation that this plan was considered impractical by Mr. Sarkis and his Cabinet because the Lebanese Army, com-posed of Moslem and Christian roops, disintegrated during the civil war and has yet to be reconstitut-ed as an effective and reliable de-edged, is not assured.

Mr. Sadat said it would require a "true administrative revolution" and a comprehensive restructuring of the government — which, he said, should be carried out by "the October generation," the people who participated in waging the October 1973 war with Israel which he said made the new era possible.

In his first public comment, the new premier warned against assuming that peace would automatically bring prosperity. "I will not promise what I cannot fulfill," he said, Mr. Khalil pledged to cut expenses, and improve public services, and said corruption would not be tolerated.

If he can deliver government services to the public and eliminate corruption, he will have performed feats that were beyond most of his

Opposition Leader

If Mrs. Ganhi re-enters Parliament, she will become the official leader of the opposition, since her faction of the Congress has more seats than the other Congress Party (72 compared with 67). But even together, the two are cumumbered by the ruling Janata Party, which has more than 300 seats.

Under the Indian parliamentary system, a candidate can run in any constituency, with no consideration of residence. Mrs. Gandhi said that she had chosen not to run for Par-liament in northern India, her trad-itional power base, because "I could not be assured of fair treatment in a state that is ruled by the Janata," as almost all of the northern states are.

In last year's election, the Congress Party candidate won 57 percent of the vote in the constituency where Mrs. Gandhi will now be running. He subsequently resigned-to take a state office, creating the resent vacancy.

Strong Candidate

The leaders of the Janata Party were conferring on the selection of a strong candidate to run against Mrs. Gandhi, who is a tough and often tireless campaigner. In their campaign against her, they are expected to remind the voters of the 19-month period of subcriteries. 19-month period of authoritarian-ism with which she ended her 11

4 Plead Guilty to Fraud In U.S. Agency Scandal

By Ronald Kessler

BALTIMORE, Oct. 5 (WP) — Two General Services Administration supply store managers and two officers of a Maryland office-sup-ply firm pleaded guilty yesterday to defrauding the federal government in a bribery scheme that cost tax-payers $1.7 million over three

The office supply firm, Hilles Associates of Westminster, Md., paid $1.3 million in bribes — cash, jewelry, appliances and other things — to managers of GSA office-supply stores in federal buildings throughout the Washington

area, according to Daniel Clements, assistant U.S. attorney.
In return for the bribes, the store managers approved $1.7 million in GSA payments to the Hilles firm for office supplies that were never delivered to GSA, Mr. Clements said in federal court here.

The Hilles firm kept the difference between the $1.7 million from GSA and the $1.3 million that it paid in bribes to the store managers, Mr. Clements said in court.

Those pleading guilty were: David Levyne, 44, the chairman of Hilles Associates; Charles Oertel, 55, the firm's vice president; William Eason, 62, who ran the GSA supply store at the Navy's Arlington Annex, and Robert Rawes, 58, who would have a supply store at the saves, 58, who would have a supply store at the Navy's Arlington Annex, and Robert Rawes, 58, who would have a supply store as the saves. who until his indictment last week was manager of the GSA supply store in the Jefferson Plaza federal office building in Arlington, Va.

First Convictions

The convictions were the first in the federal investigations of wide-spread corruption in GSA. Four-teen others were indicted here last week in the investigation of the GSA supply stores, which provide office supplies for federal workers: Many more indictments are expected, according to prosecutors.

Meanwhile, federal prosecutors And prosecutors elsewhere are probing other aspects of GSA's nationwide operations as the landlord and supply agency for the federal-

GSA special counsel Vincent Alto, who is coordinating internal investigations, estimated at a congressional hearing on Tuesday that corruption in the GSA had cost taxpayers as much as $100 million

The corruption "goes much higher than managers of supply stores," Mr. Alto said. "What we've seen is just the beginning."

Eason admitted that he had received automobile tires, a lawn mower, wood paneling and a "loan" from Hilles Associates in return for certifying that GSA had received from Hilles hanging file folders that were never delivered.

"When this all started," he explained to Judge Joseph Young, "I was approached by Oertei and told: You do this because it won't be a problem and they're doing it upstairs (at GSA)."

Oertel contended in court that the GSA store managers instigated

In the case of Eason, the scheme to pay Hilles for goods never delivered was aided by employees of the Social Security Administration and two units of the Navy who were trying to deplete money left over at the end of the fiscal year so that Congress would not reduce their budgets, Mr. Clement said.

They allowed Fason to charge They allowed Eason to charge their agencies for supplies never received, according to Mr. Clements, so that Eason would have enough GSA money to pay Hilles for goods never delivered to CSA.

gan when a former girl friend of a GSA store manager in Maryland informed GSA's Office of Investigations that the manager had been receiving gifts from office-supply firms. GSA gave the information to the FBI, and the U.S. Attorney's office here subsequently issued a subpoena for the records of Hilles and of the firms from which Hilles purchased its supplies. Mr. Clements said that, in return for cooperation already given and expected in the future, he was re-commending reduced sentences for the four who pleaded guilty yester-

He recommended a jail sentence of no more than two years for Lev-yne and Oertel and of no more than 15 months for Eason and of a year and a day for Rawes. The maximum penalty is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Sentencing was delayed until spring because the defendants are cooperating with the prosecutors.

But Mr. Carter, portraying him-self as siding with inflation-weary Americans against a free-spending Congress, staked his prestige on the outcome. He, his aides and mem-bers of his Cabinet solicited support yesterday for the veto by telephone and in person.

Mr. Carter wrote a note appeal-ing for support that was hand-de-livered to each member of Congress, and he exerted pressure on Republican congressional leaders at a White House meeting before

When the vote came, 150 Demo-crats and 73 Republicans voted to override the veto, while 128 Demo-crats and 62 Republicans voted to sustain the president.

Mr. Carter vetoed the bill over the protests of Western legislators and against the advice of the House and Senate Democratic leadership and challenged Congress to return with a water projects bill that "we actually need at a cost we can afford."

Carter Objections

The public works bill contained $6.1 billion for the Department of Energy. Mr. Carter's objections centered on most of the balance of the money which was earmarked for dams and other water resource

Mr. Carter has complained that the 53 starts on water projects — 27 more than he wanted — are "pork-barrel" provisions that are inflationary and a waste of taxpayers'

Actually, the bill provided $537 million less than the president's own water resource budget. But instead of fully financing the 26 water projects he wanted, it made downpayments on a list more than twice that size, committing the gov-ernment to expenditures of $1.8 billion more than Mr. Carter pro-

In his formal veto message, the president said: "Each bit of addi-tional spending always looks small and unimportant against the total foderal budget. The temptation to look the other way in each case is always great, but both Congress and the executive branch must recognize that there is no one, single dramatic act which will control the budget." China Premier Allegedly Going by Assumed Name

By Jay Mathews

HONG KONG, Oct. 5 (WP) - China's mysterious leader, Hua Kuo-feng is using an alias and has even more mysterious wife whose name just appeared for the first time in the official Chinese press, a pro-Peking magazine bere has reported

The article in the Chinese-language magazine Cheng Ming gives the most detailed, albeit uncon-firmed, account to date of the personal life of the man who leads the world's most populous nation. It said Mr. Hua's real name is Su Chu and that his four children use the surname Sn so that few people know they are related to the chair-man of the Communist Party and state premier

The author, who said be met Mr. Hua's family years ago in Hunan province, identified the chairman's wife as Han Chih-chun, 47. Like most married Chinese women, she uses her maiden name. She is "tall and strong with beavy eyebrows and big eyes, like Hua Kno-feng," said the author, Hung Fei. He said that Mr. Hua's wife is a native of Shansi province like her husband and works as chief of the political affairs department of the state-run light industrial products import and export corporation. He identified her as the same woman whose came appeared in a list of 213 members of the presidium of the fourth Chinese Women's National Congress. It was the first time that came had appeared in the official Chinese press, according to records available here.

chinese leaders are often reluctant to reveal details of their personal bves, but Mr. Hua's family and background remain almost a complete official blank. Other leaders like Vice Chairman Teng Hsiao-Ping show up at official functions with their wives, but there has been oo official acknowledgement that Mr. Hua, 57, even has a wife.

Comparisons Feared

He may have chosen to keep his spouse in the background to avoid odious comparisons with Chiang Ching, the disgraced wife of his predecessor, the late chairman Mao Tse-tung. The mystery of Mr. Hua's parentage, which the Cheng Ming article does not clear up, has allowed anti-Communist propagan-dists in Taiwan to speculate that he may be illegitimate or have dark secrets in his past.

Many observers have speculated that Mr. Hua, for reasons of safety or patriotism, might have given himself a new name as many other Communist leaders did during revolutionary days.

Hua Kuo-leng can be liberally translated as "China's vanguard" and sounds as if, the magazine article said, "he chose the name for himself by picking three characters out of the nine characters of chung bua kang jih chiu kuo hsien feng tui
— the Chinese vanguard troop to resist Japan and save the country -an anti-Japanese organization he joined when he was young. This showed his devotion to the Chinese

The article described three of what it said were Mr. Hua's four children, including his youngest daughter Hsiao Li, who is the only Hua relative to be named in the of-

It said one of Mr. Hua's sons It said one of Mr. Hua's sons flunked his college entrance examination this year. "Mr. Hua was asked if an exception should be made in his son's case," the article said. "Mr. Hua said absolutely not. He would rather his son prepared for the next exam by studying harder."

Eldest Son

Mr. Hua's eldest son, the article said, went to work in the countryside after graduating from high school in Hunan. His father was provincial leader then and was expected in set an example for other parents. This son later joined the army, the article said.

The daughter, Hsiao Li, graduated from middle school in Peking and also went to the countryside, as was reported in an official press account last year of Mr. Hua's visit to a parents' meeting.
The girl 'looks like her father,

[is] tall, and speaks Hunan dialect she was praised by the local farmers for her positive attitude and hard work and in 1977 was reccommended to study at the Peking industrial college," the article said.

The article did not describe Mr. Hua's fourth child. Recent refugees arriving here from China have re-ported a rumor that one of Mr. Hua's children was arrested and executed on Mr. Hua's orders for joining a criminal gang organzied by the children of high officials during the Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s.

Established organs of the Chioese-language press here known to have links to Peking have endorsed Cheng Ming articles in the past, although there is oo confirmation for the magazine's story. The author of the article said "a relative of mine worked for eight years in Hunan under Mr. Hua's leadership. I had met Mr. Hua and his wife and am quite familiar with his family."

The article describes how Mr. Hua first discovered the present Hunan provincial leader, Mao Chih-yung, when he was a young accountant and how Mr. Hua and his wife were always considered to approachable people in Hunan. Both wore simple clothes and walked or bicycled to work.

Carter Unit Reported Set To Propose Budget Cuts

By Clyde Farnsworth

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (NYT) — As part of its newly invigorated anti-inflation push, a Carter administration task force has found ways to squeeze $2.5 billion from fiscal-1979 spending and will shortly submit the package to Congress, an administration source said yesterday.

If its ideas stand up, the effect would be to trim an additional $2.5 billion from the 1979 budget deficit, projected by both the administration and Congress at around $40.

tration and Congress at around $40 billion. This is one-third less than the $60 billion targeted by President Carter last January.

The source said that in the fiscal-1980 budget exercise, in the crucial stages of resolution between White House budget staff and various agencies, the growth of expenditures would be held below the inflation rate. Some mandated programs will be affected. Here are illustrations of what is being considered according to the source:

Burial payments. The family of a deceased veteran is entitled to a burial payment from the Veterans Administration. But payments can be drawn also for all Americans covered by Social Security. Elimi-nating the double benefit would save about $770 million.

 Pension checks. The checks that Social Security mails to re-tirees always cover a full month, no matter when the retirement becomes effective. The budget-cutters want to save by making retirements after the 15th subject to only a half month's pay.

The president will submit his fis-cal-1980 deficit oext January. He has already said that he wants a deficit in the low 30 billions.

Seeking to restore confidence in the dollar, Michael Blumenthal, secretary of the treasury, would have the president announce a spe-cific 1980 figure below $30 billion in his anti-inflation program, which is expected to be unveiled after the Oct. 14 adjournment of Congress.

Sources said that Mr. Blumenthal was being opposed by James Meintyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB); Charles Schultz, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Stuart Eizenstat, the White House domestic counselor. All contend that a specific 1980 figure an-counced now would oot leave the president with enough flexibility in case of changes in the economic

Against Centuries of Indian Oppression

Militancy Grows Among Untouchables

By William Borders

NEW DELHI, (NYT) - In a primitive, grey mud village southeast of bere, a woman who belongs to India's untouchable minority was raped by two high-caste Hindus recently as punishment be-cause her husband had dared to accept an allotment of land from the vernment.

The assault, sketchily reported in the press and perfunctorily investi-gated by the police, was just anoth-er statistic in the ancient catalogue of repression that has kept the untouchables firmly imprisoned at the bottom of the Hindu social hierarchy for centuries.

What made the case unusual however, was that a few days later the aggrieved busband and a group of other untouchables retaliated for the attack by raiding the upper-caste neighborhood of the village, badly beating several caste Hindus and setting fire to a oumber of

Like other recent instances of untouchables defying tradition by fighting back against injustices, the case illustrates a new and growing militancy among the untouchables after centuries of passive accept-ance of one of the world's most miserable conditions.

"It's now or never," Defense Minister Jagivan Ram, the country's most prominent untouchable, said last month at an angry cooven-tion of untouchables in the northern city of Chandigarh. "The ques-tion today is whether to live or

The next day, the untouchables' convention passed a resolution for a commoo froot to work militantly for a broad range of social reforms, including land redistribution and various economie and social benefits for their minority, which is about 15 percent of the population.

For 30 years, India bas had laws against untouchability, the practice of designating certain people as un-touchable from birth and denying them access to temples, wells and residential neighborhoods reserved for the higher castes. It is one of the world's oldest social hierarchies and is still commoo in most villag-

To break down these prejudices, the government has waged a vigor-ous campaign and has established special untouchable quotas in government employment, in university enrollment and in Parliament.

"These are good things, of course," said an untouchable lawyer. "But the quota system has created rising expectations among our people, and unless more of the promises are fulfilled, their frustraons will increasingly explode into

In the northeastern state of Bihar, militant untouchables have been involved in violent clashes with upper caste Hindus this year over the issue of reserved jobs in the civil service. In a rural area near the western coast, there were similar clashes and a oumber of deaths last summer over a proposal to rename a university after B.R. Ambedkar, an untouchable leader. To some Indians, the untouchables' increased tendency to fight back against caste Hindus is a dangerous sign of social polarization. Scores Reported Dead as Asia Flooding Continues

BANGKOK, Oct. 5 (UPI) -Scores of persons are reported dead from the flooding in Asia during the last several weeks, which has prompted serious cho-lera outbreaks and still threatens vital crops.

Government officials in Thai-land said today that six weeks of flooding has killed at least 80 persons and turned much of the north and central part of the country into a lake.

Residents of Bangkok were warned by officials to prepare for widespread flooding as water runs toward the sea. About 500,000 acres of the rich centralplain rice bowl were still under water, officials said.

Thai health officials inoculated thousands after two persons were reported dead of cholera in Udon Thani province. Premier Kriangsak Chamanan ordered military aircraft and personnel into an all-out rescue and relief effort.

In India, officials said that a spreading cholera epidemic killed at least 100 persons during the last four days as hungry mobs raided relief trains in the flood-ravaged state of West Bengal Nami Bhattacharya, the West Bengal health minister, told re-porters that "cholera has claimed 113 lives in the Kolaghat area in Howrah district."

The official death toll from floods in India is 380, but unofficial reports place casualties at to 10 times higher. Meanwhile, radio Hanoi re-ported today that another typhoon has hit Vietnam. The typhoon, the latest in a series of tropical storms to strike Viet-nam, reportedly hit the northeast coastal area on Tuesday with high winds and heavy rains.

The floods there have de stroyed about 2.8 million tons of desperately needed rice and killed more than 200,000 farm animals, according to Vietnamese government reports. Nearly three million persons are reported to be in urgent need of food to survive the six months before the next harvest.

HEW Urges Checkups for Mothers, Children

U.S. Links Hormone Drug, Cancer Risk

By Victor Cohn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (WP) -There is clear evidence that the daughters of mothers who were given the hormone DES to prevent miscarriage have a greater than average chance of developing cancer, the government said yesterday. Joseph Califano Jr., the secretary of the Department of Health, Edncation and Welfare, warned that the four million to six million women who were given the drug, before it was banned for this use, and their daughters should have checkups, and that their sons, too, should be checked for abnormalities.

Mr. Califano asked all doctors to check their records and try to find

uchable Doctors Fear Stronger Strains Of Pneumonia

BOSTON, Oct. 5 (AP) — Doctors fear that two newly discovered strains of pneumonia-causing bacteria - which can resist almost all commonly used antibiotics - will spread throughout the world.

The bacteria, found in South Africa, cannot be destroyed by penicillin, the most frequently prescribed medicine for pneumonia Only highly toxic drugs, usually avoided by doctors, will wipe them

The researchers say that wide spread administration of a newly approved vaccine may be the only practical way to fight the pneumo-nia caused by these germs. Pneu-monia was frequently a fatal disease before the use of penicillin became common in the 1940s. The bacteria were isolated in July of last year at two hospitals in Johannesburg and have spread throughout South Africa.

patients' offspring. His statement was made as the result of years of effort by some doctors and health advocates to get the government to act because of the drug's dangers, although other doctors continued to argue about the side effects.

Mr. Califano credited Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of Ralph Nader's Health Research Group, with call-ing his attention to this problem and spurring him to name a medical task force to make the findings on which he based yesterday's deci-

Britain Reports Decline in Pill, Sharp Increase in Sterilizations

LONDON, Oct. 5 (UPI) - The British Family Planning Association reported yesterday a decline of 14 percent in the number of women using the pill, at the same time that requests for vasecto-mies and sterilizations have skyrocketed, producing waiting lists of

The association said that the drop from 3.6 million to 3.1 million users of the pill followed a study made public in October, 1977. That study warned that women above 35 who smoked or suffered other stresses faced on increased risk of circulatory disorders from

The requests for vasectomies and statilization have overwhelmed the National Health System, which estimates that it has performed 150,000 such operations in the past year. the Russians plan to start construc-tion in 1983 of a third breeder that will more than double their breeder-produced electric capacity. The United States does not operate a breeder electric plant and has no firm plans to build one. Mr. Carter ordered a halt to the pro-

In generating electricity, breeder reactors produce more plutonium fuel than they consume and thus do not rely on what many view as a diminishing supply of uranium. Critics of the reactors complain that the plutonium they produce can also be used to make nuclear weapons. In addition, plutonium is an extremely toxic element, even in microscopic quantities. Mr. Carter opposes development of the breeder plants because of the possibility that the plutonium they produce will cause proliferation of nuclear weapons, and he has urged other nations to follow suit. He has also defered indefinitely U.S. plans to produce plutonium for civilian

"We don't see any difficulties moving to plutonium," said Mi-khail Troyanov, deputy director of the Institute of Physics and Power Engineering. "After 1990, breeders should be built in the Soviet Union in large numbers," be added.

Mr. Troyanov was speaking to U.S. science writers on a trip arranged in cooperation with the Russians by the Atomie Industrial Forum, a Washington-based trade association. It is made up of major nuclear suppliers including Westinghouse and General Electric. The forum vigorously opposed Mr. Carter's efforts to stop the Clinch River breeder reactor.

No Alternative Seen

The Russians say they see no alternative to plutonium as a replacement for what they say is an inevitable dwindling of the uranium supply.

There is a worldwide debate on how much uranium can be dug out of the earth's crust. The Carter administration takes the optimistic view that there is as much as 4 million tons of extractable uranium in the United States. The National Academy of Sciences believes the United States can hope to mine only one third that much. The Soviet Union does not advertise the size of its uranium reserves, except to point out that they are not limitless. The Russians already import raw uranium ore from East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Although it is clearly ahead of the test of the world in engineering electric generators designed to use platonium, the Russians have had their share of trouble getting there.

The Russians placed their first breeder reactor near Shevchenko on the eastern shore of the Caspian Sea. The plant was built to produce electricity, and its steam was also to to desalt water from the Caspian

Sodium Tube Breaks

In 1974, one year after the Shevchenko breeder went into operation, one of the six loops of mbes that carry liquid sodium metal to transport heat from the nuclear reactor to the steam generators swelled and broke. The accident that followed mixed 125 gallons of water with one ton of sodium. Sodium ignites on contact with water in a violent enough way to release explosive hydrogen from water, and a flash fire broke out at the reactor.

Parts of the Western press said that U.S. spy satellites had wit-nessed the accident.

The Russians insist that the accident was not serious enough to shut flown the plant. "This failure was so insignificant," Mr. Troyanov said, "that not only was it impossible for sputniks to see it, but the While far advanced in designing and building the machinery for plu-tonium breeders, the Russians are five to 10 years away from operat-ing their breeders on plutonium. Uranium is being used as the fuel in Shevchenko, and the Belyoyarsk breeder will be started with uraniom as well.

Although uranium will breed plutonium in a breeder reactor, a plutonium breeder will double its fuel supply in 10 years or less while a uranium breeder might take more than 20 years to breed as much fuel

- It is not clear why the Russians are so slow in using plutonium.

Some U.S. experts suggest that the Russians had trouble with leaking plutonium fael 10 years ago and abandoned plutonium until they could plug the leaks.

No Reprocessing Plant

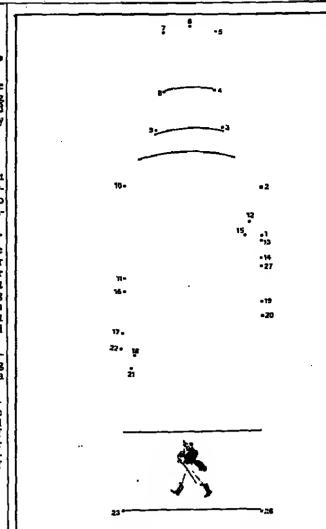

European experts point out that Russian civilians still do not operate their own reprocessing plant to extract plutonium from spent ura-

"What difference does it make," Mr. Troyanov asked, "if we use plutonium in the second decade or even the third decade of breeder operation? We have an active test rogram here at Obninsk in using botonium and we think the main thing at the other plant is to get experience on the engineering and that's what we're doing."

Soviet nuclear experts say the answers to the questions concerning plutonium lie in its control, not in a search for alternatives.

"We must rely on the nonproliferation treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons," said Igor Morozov, deputy chairman of the State Committee on Nuclear Energy, in a recent article. "The answer is to enlarge the number of treaty adherents."

Mr. Morozov made other sugges-tions about plutonium: Poisoo the fuel with a little radioactivity before using it so nobody can divert it to a bomb, burn up more of the starting fuel so the kinds of plutonium is breeds will not be the kind that is best for bombs. But don't turn your backs on plutonium, he

Visas and Politics

There was a time when visas on United States passports created gossip. Men with women who were not their wives, or women with men not their husbands could and often were barred. Then this form of supervision over individual conduct waned, and consuls, passport officials and the public at large began to concentrate on political connections. Both of these subjects aroused controversy, but at least the arguments were less bitter and costly then than they are now, as the State Department reluctantly consents to allow Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and some of his colleagues in what is supposed to be the transitional government from white-ruled Rhodesia to black-dominated Zimbabwe to visit the United States.

The technical argument put forward by the State Department for initially refusing visas to the Smith group is not, of course, without some validity. The Rhodesian government is the subject of sanctions and diplomatic embargoes by many countries, including the United States. So visas could in theory be withheld from officials of that government. But, by the same token, the United States has been active in negotiations to create a legitimate government in Salisbury; its representatives have met with those of Mr. Smith as well as with the prime minister himself. Under those circumstances, why bar him from U.S. soil? Admittedly the United Nations has taken action against the Smith regime, but surely not every action in Turtle Bay is taken all that seriously in Washington.

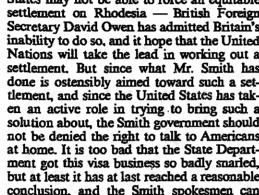

The main point of the quarrel is that a group of conservative senators, headed by Sen. Hayakawa of California, invited Mr. Smith to the United States at a time when the Carter administration (as well as Britain's Labor government) had a pronounced tilt toward accepting no transition plan for Rhodesia that was not acceptable to the fighting men of the Patriotic Front.

Mr. Smith was largely responsible for blocking British moves toward majority rule in Rhodesia and creating the present government there. His present white-black government, which is supposed to hold a free general election, has been the subject of much controversy abroad and squabbles within its own ranks. It has acted strongly against Patriotic Front political action as well as against their military strikes and has banned the only black newspaper in Rhodesia. It is by no means a perfect solution to the transition period, and may not even be a practicable one. But its members can argue that all Smith initiatives toward shifting from minority to majority rule have been opposed by the Patriotic Front and their supporters in neighboring black states — that what the front wants is not necessarily what the black majority wants; that it seeks, as its leaders have bluntly stated, military victory rather than a decision at the polls.

In other words, the present Smith government and its goals, while they must be viewed with suspicion after Smith's long racist rule, cannot be ruled out completely in favor of the warlike black Patriotic Front and the "front-line" states that comprise Rhodesia's black neighbors. The United States may not be able to force an equitable settlement on Rhodesia — British Foreign Secretary David Owen has admitted Britain's inability to do so, and it hope that the United Nations will take the lead in working out a settlement. But since what Mr. Smith has done is ostensibly aimed toward such a settlement, and since the United States has taken an active role in trying to bring such a solution about, the Smith government should not be denied the right to talk to Americans at home. It is too bad that the State Department got this visa business so badly snarled, but at least it has at last reached a reasonable conclusion, and the Smith spokesmen can come to the United States. But one may feel a little wistful about the old domination of personal morality in visa disputes. Crimes of passion can bring their own tragedies — but the crimes and follies of politics are far grimmer.

Going, Going and Gone

It's been a troubled season for the strongmen of Iran, Nicaragua and South Africa and for the Western community to which they embarrassingly adhere. Their frailty and brutality are forcing the United States to recalculate again its often conflicting stakes in security, commerce and human rights on three continents.

While Messrs. Carter, Begin and Sadat were hammering out their peace at Camp David, their solid ally, the Shah of Iran, was teetering on his throne. It would have been a bad bargain indeed for them to find each other while losing him. In fact, their peace depends on him, and his difficulties probably spurred them toward agreement. Certainly the Carter administration came to the uncomfortable recognition that it had to help the shah survive a fierce challenge from a combined opposition of left and right.

He sits, with his oil, astride the Russians' easiest path to the Middle East. He stands, among Muslims, as an enlightened conservative against the radical and the feudal. So long as he and the princes of Saudi Arabia survive, the West will be assured of access to their oil and of a vital role in the region's defense. The shah is not the most benign of monarchs; the severity and corruption of his reign have aroused much legitimate complaint. But his domestic opposition is notable for the fact that it exists; it is the consequence not only of his repressions but also of his economic reforms and political modern-

The only conceivable alternative to the Shah in Iran would be not democracy or constitutional monarchy but a military junta less able than he to control Iran's Marxists and religious reactionaries. Americans need not therefore apologize for the opportunism that leads them to prefer the tyrant they know to one they don't. They can only hope that this summer's scare will have reminded the shah to build his empire on more than one mortal pillar.

The tyrant we know in Nicaragua, by contrast, seems worse than any possible successor. Gen. Anastasio Somoza has ruled, like his father and brother, with a private army for private gain, and without redeeming reform. Virtually every social and political faction, including conservative businessmen and Roman Catholic priests, have united in opposition. Once the Carter administration made plain its distaste for a dynasty that U.S. aid and arms had preserved in power for 45 years, the pot boiled over into a bloody

Gen. Somoza has now put down the rebellion at enormous cost, insisting that only his survival can prevent the rise of another Castro. But the longer he clings to his wealth and power the greater will be the appeal of Nicaragua's Robin Hoods. That is why the Organization of American States, though reluctant to interfere in a member's domestic affairs. is unofficially asking the general to retire while he can. And the United States seems to have persuaded him to release his major political prisoners so as to arrange an early election. But the victor in battle is not likely to yield power without further pressure. If North Americans show themselves unafraid of his Communist-scare stories, we may yet help to bring better times to Nicaragua. They can hardly become worse.

As for South Africa, its relations with the rest of the world are sure to deteriorate following the retirement of the ailing prime minister, John Vorster. Although widely condemned as the fierce defender of racial apartheid, he had the stature at home to try from time to time to appease his nation's black majority and black neighbors. In his final act, however, he withdrew from a deal to let the United Nations prepare the path for an independent black regime in Namibia, the rich territory of South-West Africa that South Africans have run as their own since World War I.

·His successor, Pieter Botha, may move to eliminate some of the ugliest forms of social discrimination in South Africa, but he has been an uncompromising hawk on international questions, and notably in the effort to retain control over Namibia. There will be no budging him on this in the early months as he seeks to secure his power at home with acts of defiance abroad. In U.S. eyes, a deplorable regime will behave more deplorably still, and Western commercial interests will collide even more starkly with our most basic

NEW YORK - The New York Times says: "The recent achievement of Mr. Oldfield in running an automobile 15 miles at n velocity of over 60 miles per hour, should fill us with pride, but also reaffirm our caution. As automobiles multiply, the number of fatal accidents to those who use them increases in arithmetical ratio. They are now more than every-day occurences. Indeed, they are so commonplace as incidents and pos-sess so little 'news value' that only in the case of persons of exceptional social or business prominence are the facts reported."

BERLIN - Gen. Ludendorff, World War hero. has sent a telegram to President Hindenberg in which he claims: "I have just received my sentence of death from the Freemason's League because I revealed their crimes in the war." Ludendorff, whose strange actions recently have made him the subject of much public comment, be-lieves he will die shortly from poisoning. He wants only pure-blood Germans to be employed to canture the plotters. His wife, adherent of the cult of Odin and author of "Erotic Rebirth," is said to influence him strongly.

Rebels of 1960s: 'Our Time Is Coming'

By Tom Hayden

OS ANGELES — In August or 1968 in Chicago, I was arrested twice and beaten in the process, lived for some 48 hours in disguise for fear of further violence and then found myself facing indict-ment and trial on charges of con-spiracy to incite a riot.

In September of 1978, Hubert

Humphrey, the presidential candidate chosen in the violent setting of the Democratic convention in Chicago, is dead, as are Lyndon Johnson and Richard Daley. The Vietnessen is formatter that the contract of nam war is forgotten or unknown to most young people. The old liberal guns-and-butter coalition built around welfare at home and bellicose anti-Communism abroad has broken up, and the law-and-order candidates of 1968, Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew, having failed to imprison their anti-war adversaries, languish instead in political exile

What of the radicals of the left what of the radicals of the left from those years? We helped to shatter the walls of segregation, end the war, win new recognition for youth, minorities and women, top-ple two presidents — and yet the revolution we forecast never came.

Nostalgic

Many of us, like nostalgic veterans of wars past, now ask ourselves whether "our time" has passed. My own opinion is that "our time" is coming — but not as quickly and not necessarily in the same way we

Take the Chicago conspiracy de-fendants as an example. Various observers, apparently seeking to the coal miners' strike, the farmers' dispose lightly of the spirit of the 1960s, take satisfaction from the "failure" of those prosecuted in that trial, from our apparent aban-doning of the barricade.

I see it differently. We have not been without our petty conceits, even our imbecilities, but on the whole we are still trying to live lives of social responsibility. I now chair the Campaign for Economic Democracy, a grass-roots effort to bring giant corporations under democratic control. David Dellinger edits a political magazine and continues to demonstrate against nuclear weapons and other threats to the buman race. Jerry Rubin continues his quest for a therapeutic revolution. Bobby Seale writes books and is working in social ser-vice programs. Lee Weiner and John Fromes are in Washington, Lee with the ACTION program and John with the Occupational Health and Safety Agency. Our main lawyers in the trial, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, continue to represent unpopular defendants. Abbie Hoffman has litcrally dropped out, since he's forced to live as a fugitive to avoid a long jail sentence on an old drug charge, but only Rennie Davis has dropped political activism — and that to undertake a spiritual life.

The Struggle

So while we are not quite "Eight Who Changed the World," neither have we given up the struggle. None of us has had conventional careers, or joined in celebrating the system we opposed together in Chi-

Those who may have expected more might recall that we were chosen for our role as symbols of protest in Chicago — not because of any special gifts, but because John Mitchell's Justice Department de-cided to indict a certain panorama of scapegoats for a showcase trial. We were the best the authorities could find, and yet even the jury in the end did not consider us a con-

At the height of the war and the urban riots, those of us looking for change faced a closed political system and it was logical to carry our dissent into the streets. By doing so, we opened a crack in the system, and having opened it, it is now hardly surprising for us to enter. And so some, like myself, have run for public office; anti-war leader Sam Brown heads ACTION, with an early civil-rights leader, John Lewis, as his deputy; former Ram-parts editor Robert Scheer writes articles that appear on the front page of the Los Angeles Times. My wife, Jane Fonda who was a special target of Nixon and almost blacklisted in Hollywood, is now "respectable" and drawing large audiences. Other examples abound.

...me will concede these cases in print, but scoff at the notion that they represent more than the moderate success of a few individuals. The trend, they say, is to the right, to apathy, to a return to the 1950s.

Certainly a rightist counterattack is under way at the moment, aimed at rolling back many of the gains of the past 15 years. I chafe when I hear high officials calling on Americans to "toughen up" for another showdown with the Soviet Union over Africa — as if nothing at all has been learned from the Vietnam way. I am bitter when I read that war. I am bitter when I read that more Americans are poor today than when Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty started, and that an en-tire generation of minority youth is being written off as expendable. I am depressed to find that today's college students have been cut off from their own immediate history: Most don't know whether SDS stands for the Students for a Democratic Society or the name of a detergent.

Ultimately, however, this shift to the right doesn't worry me. The achievements of the 1960s cannot ever be erased entirely, nor can we be pushed back to the 1950s. Times have changed too much.

Nothing can persuade women and minorities, for example, that they should reset their consciousnesses and expectations, like the hands of a clock, to those of the 1950s. Nothing could convince U.S. parents to send their sons loyally to die somewhere in the Third World. Indeed, recent events like tion 13 vote in California are evidence of a deepening of populist skepticism toward all institutions.

What concerns me more than the rise of the right is the decline of the center. Middle-of-the-road officialdom seems to have no answers to our economic problems beyond those of the New Deal nor to our foreign problems beyond those of the cold war. The country is daily becoming less governable because no consensus of purpose binds the U.S. people. Americans under age 18 have never experienced a stable two-term presidency. As spiraling energy costs aggravate the economic picture, more and more Ameri-

The political activists of the 1960s, having now fully cut their teeth, will be back again and again with the same philosopby but ex-pressed through new roles. If the 1960s brought our birth and devel-opment, the 1980s and 1990s will be our years of maximum influence and maturity.
My point is simple: The 1960s eated what can be called a leadership generation for the future. Just as the Depression and World War II were the formative experiences for most of our decision-makers for the past 30 years - including every president from Truman to Carter - so the Vietnam-to-Watergate period gave birth to a new generation of dedicated and politicized people. In our fathers' time, democracy was threatened from abroad, our own institutions were basically sound, affluence appeared to most to be guaranteed, the United States was

of Consent

The reappearance in years ahead of the 1960s activists with this guiding outlook will be misread by many. Some will not recognize us, and some will believe we have "settled down" too much. We will not be a protesting fringe, because the fringe of yesterday is the main-stream of tomorrow. We will not be protesting but proposing solutions: an energy program emphasizing renewable resources, such as the sun; cans will be competing for less and less in the "land of opportunity." democratic restructuring of large corporations; employing technology to decentralize decision-making and information, making the quality of our lives more important than greed and materialism.

Roots

Those who filled the streets in the 1960s may yet fill the halls of government in the 1980's and if we do, I don't believe we will forget our roots. When I was being sentenced by Judge Julius Hoffman at the end of the Chicago trial, he looked bemusedly at me, and said, A smart fellow like you could go far under our system."

Who knows, Your Honor, per-haps I will. And if it should happen, I won't forget how much you

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington

By Anthony Lewis

BOSTON — After agonizing over the question for weeks, the Carter administration has decided to let Ian Smith, the white Rhodesian leader visit this country. He was invited by 27 senators, and they applied heavy political pres-sure to overcome doubts in the State Department.

The visit does raise serious diplomatic problems, and it will complicate the lives of officials trying to deal with the menacing situation in Rhodesia. But I think the decision to allow it was correct. That is not the cause of Smith's statesmanship or personal qualities. The reasons lie in U.S. principles and U.S. inter-

No one should have any illusions about Ian Smith. He has presided over one of the most disasterous adventures in the recent history of international affairs: the attempt to perpetuate control of Rhodesia by its tiny white minority, less than 5 percent of the population. His policy has brought a promising country to the edge of chaos.

Blacks Excluded

Smith founded his regime on racial discrimination of a kind that Americans have begun to forget. Blacks were excluded by law from owning most of Rhodesia's good farmland, sent to separate and grossly unequal schools, denied ac-cess to political power. Inevitably, they turned to armed rebellion. Even on his own terms, without regard to racism. Smith has been a failure. His "independent Rhodesia" is collasping after a dozen years. He has missed successive chances to settle on attractive terms

Game Is Up spring has not made any substantial changes in racial policies and it has not won the black popular support essential to its success. Nor could Smith rightly cry "unfair" if he were kept out. He has not hesitated to excluded from Rhodesia, or deport journalists or lawyers or anyone he dislikes. He censors the press and has just closed Rhodesia's only black paper. His government forced thousands of blacks to leave their homes and live in "protected villages" that even he has lately called "prisons."

No Grace

In short, we owe Smith no grace. But we owe ourselves commitment to a principle that I heard Andrew Young express a year ago. An African leader asked him what the United States had done about closing the Rhodesian Information Office in Washington.

"We haven't done anything," Young said, "and I guess I don't advocate doing anything. That's one of the things I like about this country. We don't have to shut up people we disagree with."
Until recently, Communists invited to the United States by respected groups were denied visas. President Carter wisely thought that a self-confident democracry did not need such a policy, but George Meany and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., tried last summer to revive it. We should avoid any precedents that would encourage them.

The serious doubt about a Smith visit is that it could hurt U.S. hopes of diplomatic cooperation from the nearby African states, and encourage the bitter-end whites in Rhode sia to go on with the policy that have proved so disasterous. As the Economist of London put it, the visit may "leave Rhodesia's whites to believe that some kind of rabbit may yet be pulled out of the hat." The rabbit would be U.S. on the side of the present Rhodesian regime. Supports of that idea has

But Smith really knows now that the game is up. He knows that the United States cannot save him. He knows that he must soon leave political life giving way to a genuine black government. That is why he tried secret negotiations with Joshua Nkomo, the external black leader most likely to make a deal. The danger on the horizon — to the United States and the West as well as to Rhodesia — is civil war among black factions in Rhodesia, with Soviet and Cuban intervention then a possibility. The urgent aim of the West, on which Smith can play a last useful role, is to transfer

All this suggests a reason of politics as well as principle for a Smith visit. President Carter may use it for one last diplomatic effort to stop Rhodesia's slide into chaos. The obstacles are great. African countires are skeptical. A larger British and U.S. role would be required. But the alternative for everyone — white and black, Rhode-sian and American and British is ghastly.

Two Spectacles and a Solo

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss PARIS, Oct. 5 (IHT) — Spectacle is the order of the week. At the Palais des Sports a huge, energetic cast is engaged in Robert Hossein's massive mise-en-scene of "Notre Dame de Paris," and in the Grand Salle of the Pompidou Center there

> "Mori El Merma," performed brilliantly by the Claca company of Barcelona, demonstrates the Gorbarctiona, demonstrates the Gordon Craig theory of the super-marionette. The notion is been put to an interesting code in here put to an interesting and successful test with the players disguised as the grotesque creatures of anxiety dreams.

The bizarre action, against backcloths splattered by Miro's vivid brush, concerns the toppling of a tyrant and his corrupt court. Among the courtiers are a dwarf of giant foot, a monster of skinny arms, a turnip-head and a coquette-ish red-haired female form, clad in a balloon dress.

The royal guards alone are human, and constantly conduct raids to the shrill warning of their police whistles. A simian tribe plots and plans the regime's overthrow — a malicious monkey striking the final blow for freedom with a

Extraordinary

The acting of these muffled artists is extraordinary. These inter-preters have graceful mobility and humorous rhythm. The exchanges are grunts, groans and moans, and the unly comprehensible phrase is the cry, "Mori el merma" — death to the tyrant. The oppressor is of Ubu proportions.

The spirit of the enterprise is that of a carnival, with folk-instrument music accompanying the nightmare visions and the bugle of the bull-ring occasionally piercing through. The exotic spectacle has a playful, festive air that appeals to children as well as to adults. The Claca theater has brought us a presentation of rich imagination and remarkable execution.

As a savory of these full-fledged spectacles, there is at the Studio des Champs-Elysees "Au Benefice du Doute," in which for two hours an imaided Curt Jurgens seeks to convince us that he is the late Clarence Darrow, Darrow, great defender of the underdog and relentless foe of capital punishment, has a lofty place in early 20th century U.S. his-

Theater in Berlin

A New Production of 'Mother Courage'

By Paul Moor

BERLIN, Oct. 5 — I went to the Berliner Ensemble's new production of Bertolt Brecht's most fa-mous play, "Mother Courage," with an apprehensive feeling of the sincerest compassion for all

Thirty-one years ago Brecht, ha-rassed by the House Committee on un-American Activities, fled to Switzerland; then, refused a visa for Munich in Germany's U.S. zone, he accepted a Soviet invitation to East Berlin. There he founded his own company, the Berliner Ensemble, by staging the exem-plary production of "Mother Cour-age" that still stands as a milestone in contemporary theatrical history.

Much has happened to the En-semble since then. As long as Brecht lived, it retained its rank at the highest historical level of repertoire theater — alongside Stanislav-sky's Moscow Art Theater and the Abbey Theater in Dublin. After Brecht's death, his widow, Helene Weigel, berself unforgettable as Mother Courage, assumed com-plete control. Regrettably, her abrasive personality soon had most of the company's leading members looking for opportunities else-where. Her successor managed some good productions, but in the long run proved inadequate to the task of restoring the company to its, former standing.

Now the Berliner Ensemble has a oew collective leadership, with Brecht's longtime pupil and co-worker Manfred Wekwerth as primus inter pares. Things got off to an encouraging start for the new leadership this year with an outstanding new production of Brecht's "Galileo," with the author's gifted son-in-law Ekke-hard Schall impressive in the title

Ekkehard Schaal, one of Mother Courage's sons in the old produc-non, now plays the cook. Like almost everyone else in last night's performance, he began with evident nervousness but improved considerably as the evening went on.

Peter Kupke has staged the play with finesse against extremely spare decor by Manfred Grund. Outstanding are Holger Mahlich and Michael Gerber as the two sons. Franziska Troegner as the mute Katurin, Dieter Franke as the chaplain, and Renate Richter as the whore Yvette.

Brecht's old production of "Mother Courage" will remain a Schiffbauerdamm, today the Thetheatrical monument. That fact has to be lived with, the new leadership of the Ensemble has made a commendable effort to do just that: After 17 years, "Mother Courage" has rejoined this repertory — a boon especially for new audiences who missed the old production, and can now discover the play in these historic surroundings.

While the disclosure today that the U.S. wholesale prices rose 0.9 percent in September was treated as a negative consideration for the dollar, expert opinion holds that the dollar's present weakness is as-sociated almost entirely with the arrangements for the European Monetary System (EMS). At least, the available evidence indicates that the ongoing movement of funds into the Deutsche mark from other European currencies is exerting downward pressure on the dollar. Not only is the dollar used as the transaction and financing cur-rency for speculation on a Deutsche mark revaluation, some snake central banks have reportedly been selling their dollar reserves to keep their currencies within the required trading range of the mark and thereby exerting further down-ward pressure on the U.S. currency. Figures released by the Bundes-bank showed that in the September

GE Plans to Buy Cox Broadcasting

General Electric says it plans to acquire the Atlanta-based Cox Broadcasting Corp. for stock valued at about $467 million. GE and Cox say their boards have authorized negotiations for a definitive agreement based on the exchange of 1.3 GE shares of common stock for each Cox share. The Cox family also owns The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution, which would not be involved in the merger. GE chairman Reginald Jones says GE also expects to report its third-quarter profits rose from the $1.18 a share a year earlier, but the gain will not be as much as the 16 percent in the first half.

Westinghouse to Settle Uranium Suit

Westinghouse Electric said it has reached final agreement on an out-of-court settlement on a uranium supply lawsuit brought by Houston Lighting & Power acting as project manager for the South Texas Project. The claim resolved by the settlement represents about 16 percent of the total uranium claimed in 17 utility lawsuits originally filed against Westing-house in federal and state courts and in Sweden. The suits were filed after Westinghouse terminated the uranium supply contracts on the ground it would be "commercially impracticable" to fulfill them. Westinghouse says the pre-tax cost to the company "nf the current and future obligations involved in the settlement, which will be accounted for in the third quarter, amounts to $112 million with a present worth of $72.5 million."

But the antitrust case, for up to $390 million in triple damages, brought in 1973 by the subsidiary of Transamerica is still scheduled for trial Nov. 6. In granting IBM's motion that the predatory-pricing charges be thrown out, the judge said, "it doesn't appear that Transamerica. ...eould prove predatory pricing. . .by the total cost test or the variable cost test." He gave Transamerica 10 days to resubmit its pricing claims to see if they can meet his standards.

WASHINGTON, Oct 5 (UPI) - tributed mostly to a large jump in Led by an abrupt and unexpected climb in food costs, U.S. wholesale prices climbed 0.9 percent in Sep-tember for the largest monthly gain since spring, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said food prices soared by 1.7 percent, the largest rise since April, after falling 1.5 percent in August and 0.3 percent in July. The overall 0.9 percent wholesale price jump was also the biggest since last April's 1.3 percent, the department said. Overall, wholesale prices had actually declined in August for the first time in two years in two years.

"It was a somewhat unpleasant surprise," said William Cox, a Commerce Department economist. "We had not expected the big jump in food prices," he said, adding the higher food prices — particularly for beef and yeal — will show up quickly at the retail level.

Another government economist.

John Early of the Labor Department, was not quite so pessimistie. The latest report "doesn't indicate things are getting worse, but it cancels out hope that things are getting better," he said.

Bill Brock, chairman of the Republican National Committee, used the report to make some political points. "Today's dismal report on the incredible increase in wholesale prices proves again that the Carter administration and the Democrat-ic-controlled Congress has failed miserably in the fight to keep down the cost of living."

President Carter and his eco-nomic policymakers have main-tained that inflation would taper off somewhat - especially in the food sector — during the second half of 1978 after surging ahead at an alarming pace during the first

Report from Number One Wall Street

Practical economics.

George McKinney, head of the Irving's Economic Research & Planning Division, is one of the most highly regarded economists in the banking industry. His candid and McKinger and his people travel , extensively throughout the U.S. and , abroad holding seminars, participating in conferences, and briefing Irving clients. The division also publishes many economic studies and analyses thought-provoking insights are often quoted in the nation's business press.

Yet, ask McKinney what school of economic thought he uses to interpret trends or furecast changes and he'll tell you, "All of them."

A true eclectic, McKinney sets the tenor for the 30 staff membersprofessional economists, statisticians, chartists, librarians-who make up the Irving's economics division.

"Our main task," says McKinney, "is to provide the economic input that's vital to the decision making process. So we look at the relevant data from many different viewpoints. Then, we form our own opinions about the forces that affect the Irving and our clients. And when we see things differently than the majority. we don't hesitate to make our views krkiwn."

such as Foreign Exchange Market Trends, Business Conditions USA and The Economic View From One Wall Street.

The weekly Financial Markets letter is in Glenn Picou's area of specialization. One of the Irving's eight economists, Picou watches the capital and money markets and analyzes the forces that make them move. When we give opinions on the outlook for interest rares, we review all the factors," he says. "We watch the Fed, but we also look at commercial banks, the government, consumers, and business. And we stay in touch with our bond and money market specialists to compare views on the current time of the markets."

Practical economic research is another resource for clients to call upon. Another service that plays a key part in making the Irving unique.

First with the BEST.

When the Irving recently established BEST, the first computer to computer link with the Federal Reserve System in New York, more than history was made.

"BEST, short for Book Entry Securities Iransfer, mok three years to create. And then, with the speed of light, put the leving in the forefront of electronic funds transfer capability," says Bryan Walsh of the Irving's Operational Services Division. For customers, BEST means more rapid Fed Wire transactions. Precise account monitoring, Less paperwork. Fully automated crediting and debiting. In addition, the Irving electronically effects and settles customers' U.S. Government and Agency securines transactions.

The Irving has long been among the leaders in funds movement technology. For example, the Irving helped establish a new system for transferring funds worldwide. This system, known as SWIFT (Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunications), is functioning in Europe and will become operational in the U.S. this year.
Says Walsh: "As a major money-center bank, we look for opportunities to provide a better service for our customers. And providing better service is what the living is all about."

WHAT IS AN EDITOR?

Saxe Commins at Work

By Dorothy Commins. University of Chicago Press. 243 pp. Illustrated $10.

Reviewed by Robert Kirsch

CEFFICIENCY of mind and goodness of heart are rarely combined in equal measure, but in Saxe they were," W.H. Auden said of his editor, Saxe Commins. William Faulkner, whose editor he also was, expressed similar sentiments in a telegram when he heard Commins had died (characteristically at work in the hospital on the galley proofs of Isak Dinesen's "Last Tales.").

Commins came to editing later than most, and from an unlikely background. He had started medical training but had to transfer to cal training but had to transfer to dentistry when his brother fell ill of tuberculosis and the family couldn't afford to pay for the long-er training. He had literary inter-ests and friendships as early as his adolescence. He brought to editorial work a notion of the real world as well as the ideals and sensibilities of an enthusiast of books and drama.

On one of his weekends in New York while a student at the University of Pennsylvania, Commins met John Reed, the rebel reporter and crusader who would write "Ten Days That Shook the World." Through Reed in 1917 Commins was introduced to Eugene O'Neill, whose lifelong friend and editor be would be. Indeed, he was also for a time O'Neill's dentist. Commins had set up a prosperous practice in Rochester, though he went to New York frequently. He and his wife Dorothy lived in Paris for a time where their apartment was a center where their apartment was a center for writers and poets.

He could not have begin his career as editor at a worse time. The Depression put publishing in a precarious state. Commins went to work for Covici-Friede, then brefly worked for the flambournt Horace. worked for the flamboyant Horace Liveright, who was teetering on the brink of bankruptcy. Commins was O'Neill's editor there. The two of them went to Random House in 1933 where Commins worked until his death in 1958.

Under Bennett Cerf, the ebullient young publisher who had acquired Liveright's Modern Library, Commins found his niche in the publishing world. His first assignment was an impossible one; to edit Gertrude Stein. The most he could do was to make sure everything she said went in and see to the pagination in logical sequence. When he called to her attention the existence of an Act IV in "Four Saints in Three Acts," she looked at him and said, "My dear, you sim-ply don't understand."

What Commins did understand

was how to work with the tempera-mental, the talented and the artistic. When Cerf sent Gertrude a royalty check made out to "A Stein is a Stein is a Stein," Gertrude snapped back: "Cut out the non-sense and send me a proper check immediately." Commins was of-fered some attractive Hollywood jobs because of his ability to handle (Miss Stein's word for herself). He resisted the lure of films.

He never regretted that. As an editor he was close to the great and near-great in literature and politics, enabling him to work with Franklin D. Roosevelt and Adlai Stevenson, with Auden and Sinclair Lewis, S.N. Behrman, John O'Hara, Budd Schulberg, Robinson Jeffers, Henry Steele Commager, Irwin Shaw and many others, including Fanlkner. His interests were broad and ranging; he had written a book on popular psychology, had done his share of ghostwriting, kept an interst in science and had edited a sub stan-tial series in that field.

In the new era of publishing with editors who concentrate on acquisi-tion and deal-making, publicity and advocacy, Commins seems antiquated. He had his share of the care and feeding of authors (the book is filled with anecdotes, such as the time Commins had a second as the time Commins had a second satin stripe put down the trouser legs of Faulkner's dress suit because the king of Sweden had two on his pants at the Nobel award ceremony) and he knew that without business success commercial publishing would die. Yet, it was not in him to be a wheeler-dealer. He hated cockrail parties He hated cocktail parties.

At one of them, an attractive woman approached him and asked whether he was a writer. "No." "Then what do you do?" On impulse, he said: "Tm in the cleaning and repairing business."

We see him here in all his roles parent, detail editor, catalyst. He was a retiring, self-effacing man. Typically, though be kept many let-ters from his writers, he did not see any reason to hold on to his own He knew style and life, mastered the practical craft of book publish-ing, sublimated his own bold and imaginative instincts to the goal of an editor: to help the author say best what the author needed and wanted to say, sometimes even toelicit what the writer didn't know he had to give.

'First Family' Stirs Furor at White House

What they read was a clef about a Tennesee-born pressdent, Tom Painter, and his wife Joanelle, "an attractive woman not-terribly well understood by her husband," according to the authorwho went on to say that "a variety" of things build up during her first year as first lady and she has a nervous breakdown."

There is more, of course, including an affair between the president and his secretary, as well as characters whose antics might give some people the impression they are straight out of the Carter White House.

None of it would rock any ship of state, least of all Carter's, were it on the fact that Anderson is a former speechwriter for Jimmy Carter and his wife, Ann, is a former deputy press secretary to Rosa-lyan Carter. She was dismissed in August when it was anounced that: the first lady's staff was being reorganized and her job was being eliminated. Her husband called it "a strange coincidence" in timing.

At the White House, the question seems to be whether Anderson has traded on what he knows to be fact in developing fictional charac-ters, and whether readers will be able to distinguish between the

Carter aide Greg Schneiders told the Chicago Tribune he considered it "irresponsible for an author to write in a way that so closely paralwrite in a way that so closely para-less the real world in the details that would make these people identifi-able and then to depart from reality in the essential storyline."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4 - The Los Angeles Dodgers opened the National League playoffs in im-pressive fashion last night, thump-ing the Phillies, 9-5, before a crowd of 63,460 at Veterans Stadium.

Welch came out of the bullpen and cooled the Philadelphia hitters with some smoke for the final 41/2 innings to get the victory.

The Dodger victory ruined Phil-lie manager Danny Ozark's predic-tion of a three-game Philadelphia blitz. The Phillies are 0-5 at home

Dave Lopes' psyche job began in a pre-game meeting called by man-ager Tom Lasorda to remind the team of the plight of coach Jim Gilham, still in a come after a brain hemorrhage.

Lopes stood by the batting cage

Patek Turns Yanks Back

Royals' David Smites Goliath

By Joseph Durso

NEW YORK, Oct 5 (NYT) -Just ask the Boston Red Sox: Outside of death and taxes, nothing is certain in life, especially in a short series. Not even if you're the New York Yankees

Having won the Battle of Bunker Hill on Monday and the first Battle of Kansas City on Tuesday, the rich and reigning world champions of baseball were not precisely prepared for what happened yester-But it happened: Freddie Patek, the 5-foot-4-inch shortstop for the Kansas City Royals, the smallest player in the big leagues, delivered the coup de grace. He hit a mansized home run that helped topple the Yankees and sent half of the sport's traveling circus to the Bronx in a stelemate. in a stalemate.

When the playoff is resumed tomorrow, a measure of symmetry will have been restored. The American League pennant will be won this weekend in New York and the National League pennant in Los Angeles, in the home parks of the survivors of last season. But except for the symmetry of the geography, don't think that reason will necessarily survive.

Small Texan

Exhibit "A" is Freddie Patek. Everything about him is short, including his beard and his batting average. You've heard of the tall Texan; well, he is the small Texan. He stands a foot shorter than Dave Kingman and weighs 100 pounds less than Dave Parker. During 11 summers in the bigtime, the little man has hit 35 home runs, 11 fewer than Jim Rice hit this summer. But he hit one in the seventh in-

New York.
"I've been dreaming about playing in a World Series since I was 2 years old, when I started playing baseball with my uncle, said Patek, who will turn 34 on the eve of the World Series next week. The funny thing is, the Yankees were always my favorite team. Deep down I always wanted to play for the Yankees. Now, deep down and every other way, I want

The thing about Patek is that you can take him for granted — like David and his slingshot. He was considered a novelty when the Pittsburgh Pirates brought him up to the big leagues in 1968, a short shortstop. He stayed there three seasons, then was traded to Kansas Citatian time and the stayed and the stayed the staye City in a six-player deal.

Worker With a Glove

Since then, he has made his living with his glove, four times lead-ing the American League in double plays, but not hurting many people with his bat. His career average is crowding .240. But when the armies are gathered and the money is ou the line, he flexes his muscles. His batting average in four playoffs now stands at .389.

Whitey Herzog, the manager of the Royals, who has watched all three of Patek's home runs this season with wonder, shook his head

"I've been here 31/2 years watching this team every day, and I never know what it's going to do." The Royals mystify Herzog because they have a certain gift for going to extremes of behavior. Two years ago, they backed into the Western Division title by losing seven of their last eight games. When they did clinch it on the final day of the season, Patek flung himself into the waterfall display beyoud the centerfield fence. Then they wrestled the Yankees in the playoff until Chris Chambliss beat them with a home run in the final inning of the final game.

Last year, they went to the other extreme: They won 16 straight in September and went in head-first. They even were leading the Yankees, two games to one, and needed only one more victory to win the pennant -on their own tricky artificial turf, at that.

But then they went to the ulti-mate extreme. They lost the next game, they were leading all the way in the deciding game, they surren-dered three runs in the final inning and once more were gone.

So when they took a 7-1 pasting Tuesday night, the old memories came washing back. Patek even criticized the hometown fans for giving up on the team. Earlier, some of the other players had criti-cized Patek for staying out of the lineup because of his sore arm. They were beginning to act vaguely like the Yankees under Billy Mar-

Fred Shero, their new coach and general manager, has moved 90 miles up from Philadelphia and there will be little brotherly love exhibited when the Flyers meet the k in that suit and 5 the New York Islanders, and Rangers this year. In a preseason

In addition to presiding over ame meetings, the former U.S. cretary of state will serve as a adviser on league matters afcting soccer in the United ates and Canada. He will not ceive pay for the position.

Kissinger said that his main rjective is to help build a naal team which will be comtitive on an international vel. He said that he also wants bring the World Cup cham-possibly in 1990.

Kissinger, an avid soccer fan who has attended games at the last three World Cups, said that the key to building a strong na-tional team will be the continned development of programs at all levels of competition grade school, high school and college.

"I've been interested in soccer as a hobby since I was a little boy," said Kissinger, a native of Germany. "I felt I should purchase an option to make it clear that I'm doing this as a hobby and because of my interest in the sport. It's not likely that I'll be exercising the option in the near future. I'm too busy right

Thomas is mediocre. Leadership is Lacking

Veteran center Phil Esposito (38-43-81) was the only Ranger in the league's top 20 scorers and the de-fense lacks a take-charge player like Montreal's Larry Robinson, Boston's Brad Park or the Islanders' Denis Potvin.

The Islanders had the secondhighest goal total (334) in the league behind Montreal last year and had three of the NHL's top six scorers. Center Bryan Trottier, who led the league in scoring until a back ailment slowed him late in the season, led the NHL with 77 assists and added 46 goals to finish second in total points to Montreal's Guy Lafleur.

Potvin, who got off to a sluggish start, had a torrid finish for 30-64-94 and rookie right wing Mike Bos-sy (53-38-91) was sensational throughout, becoming the first rookie to score 50 goals.

Left wing Clark Gillies enjoyed a big year and Glenn Resch and Billy Smith give the Islanders the best goaltending in the division. But New York will have to recover from a brutal seven-game loss to Toronto in the Stanley Cup quarterfinals. The Islanders certainly have the talent to win the division comfortably — it's their mental at-titude that needs strengthening.

The Philadelphia Flyers gave the Islanders a run for the division title for most of last year but they looked like a very tired playoff club in losing four of five to Boston.

Uneven Intensity

Center Bobby Clarke (21-68-89) is still a marvelous team leader and perhaps hockey's best passer, and Bill Barber (41) and Rick MacLeish (31) are dangerous scorers but the almost-manic intensity that characterized Philadelphia's Stanley Cup championship seasons (1974 and 1975) has been sporadic.

Jim Watson has emerged as one of the NHL's steadiest defensemen and Bernie Parent and Wayne Stephenson had solid seasons in goal but new coach Bob McCammon must rededicate the Flyers to Atlanta's 274 goals were the

The Flames parted with defense-man Dick Redmond for Pronovost and the rest of the defense is mexperienced but talented. Goalie Dan Bouchard is steady but he probably will be overworked this year.

Adams Division

If nothing else, the Adams Divi-sion race this season will show whether two resounding failures can add up to one rousing success. .
With both Minnesota and Cleveland struggling through financial and artistic failures, the league sought to solve both problem areas by merging the two teams.

The new North Stars, although bearing the name of a team that managed only 18 victories last year the poorest record in the NHL - are revitalized this season, and — are reviainzed this season, and only the fact that they are playing in what may be the league's toughest division prevents wild speculation of a high finish.

The Boston Bruins, losers to Montreal in the Stanley Cup finals two successive years, continue to rule as the favorites for the division championship. The Buffalo Sabres, who posted the fourth best record in the NHL last season, should be powerful once again, while the rapidly improving Toronto Maple Leafs remain a threat to move up.

It is highly unlikely that the re-vamped North Stars will be anything resembling an embarrassment this season. They will be immensely improved in goal, with Gilles

Dotting Kandinsky's i's

PARIS (IHT) — When her account of life with the painter Wassily Kandinsky came out, it was suggested that Nina Kan-dinsky had been too uncritical. too adoring. "Quite sincerely," she says in the Neuilly flat the Kandinskys moved into when it was new in 1934. "I was never aware of any defects. He was honest, intelligent, cultivated and modest. He had a good heart and he was handsome. He was, she says, not tall hut well built. His gaze, behind severe spectacles, was a dancing hlue. His eve, Andre Breton said in 1938, "is the eye of one of the first and one of the greatest revolutionaries of vision. Nina von Andreevski married Kandinsky in Moscow when he was 51 (she will not tell her age. but she was in her teens and her hushand was older than her father). Kandinsky had been ejected from Munich at the start of World War I, and a mutual friend asked Nina to telephone the conversation, Kandinsky painted a watercolor that hangs over the large TV in Neuilly: En Hommage a Une Voix

'Anguish Behind Him'

When they met, Kandinsky was divorced and his liaison with the painter Gahriele Muenter had ended. He was already a considerable figure: His paintings had heen shown in Germany. Paris. Switzerland. Amsterdam. New York and Moscow, and he had written a book of memoirs and the diffi-cult and valuable "Concerning the Spiritual in Art." He had painted in 1910, what has been claimed to be the first abstract painting, a watercolor now in the Pompidou Center in Paris. and he was the co-founder of the Blaue Reiter. "By the time we met, he was calm and most of his moments of anguish were hehind him." Nina Kandinsky says.

gion d'Honneur. Kandinsky had

She can he brutal — asked whether there are many Kandinskys in England, her prompt re-ply is. They haven't any money — and she is a veritable hulldog ahout protecting Kandinsky's name.

"The aim of my book is to dot the i's, because critics often don't do their research." The book was published in Germany two years ago and last month in France ("Kandinsky et Moi." Flammarion). "Kandinsky was always furious about the Blaue Reiter: it was founded by only two persons. Kandinsky and Franz Marc, Kandinsky told me people used the name later for all sorts of things.

"Also, in 1911, in St. Petersburg. Kandinsky gave a lecture in which he read parts of 'Concerning the Spiritual in Art.' So it wasn't Malevich who invented the square, but Kandinsky. Malevich only used the square in 1913. Kandinsky wrote the book in 1910. These are only two

Like many deep people, Kan-dinsky seemed full of superficial contradictions. The intrepid experimenter was deeply conservative; the earnest theorist, who only turned to painting in his 30s after a successful career in law and ethnology, worked in joy; often the oldest person in the room, he always seemed, his wife says, the youngest. He was methodical, tidy, painted in a suit and tie ("I could paint in a dinner jacket." he used to say), deplored bohemianism, and produced works full of passion. He read detective stories and Dickens in Russian, said that a good painter should enjoy good food, saw any film of Chaplin, Keaton or Valentino several times, and sensed that even inanimate objects vibrate with life.

The Hardest Art

"He taught his students that abstract art is the hardest." Nina Kandinsky says. "You have to know how to draw, have a sense of composition and be a poet so as not to repeat yourself. If you don't have the poetry and fantasy, he would say, go back to nature. And a lot of his students would go back to landscapes."

Kandinsky loved nature. He was startled when Mondrian came to lunch at Neuilly and, having heen given the place of honor opposite the blossoming chestnut trees, suddenly said, "How awful that is," "What is awful?" Kandinsky asked. "All those trees,"

The two changed places. When he came to Paris, Kan-dinsky was at first coolly received. "One painter said you > must wait 10 years to be one of us," his wife says. In Bauhaus days Kandinsky had admired Mies van der Rohe hut not Gropius or Le Corbusier hut not Gropius or Le Corbusier's (seeing hooks on Le Corhusier's concrete shelves, he exclaimed, "Poor things"). Paul Klee was his lifelong friend. In Paris he was friendly with Arp, Miro, the Delaunays. He wanted to meet Matisse hut never did; he thought the post-Cubist Picasso insincere. Marcel Duchamp found them their Paris flat. found them their Paris flat. Nina Kandinsky has changed the flat as little as possible and some of the furniture goes back to Kandinsky's first departure from Russia at the turn of the century. In the dining room are the black and white circular chairs (Kandinsky was then in his circle period) that Marcel Breuer made for them and in the studio is his famous Wassily chair, named after Kandinsky. The paintings in the flat include a Douanier Rousseau, two Kandinskys from his Bauhaus period in oval, family-portraitstyle frames that he liked to refer to as "my grandfather" and "my grandmother," a 1944 Kandinsky of great serenity and a 1904 figurative scene of Morocco.

Kandinsky in his studio: "I could paint in a dinner jacket."

"Look at the paving stones: Mondrian didn't do that until 1916," Mrs. Kandinsky says. "And look at the white, It hasn't hudged. Cubist whites have all

The studio, which Mrs. Kandinsky never entered while her husband was working, has on its right-hand side narrow shelves lined with the colors that Kan-dinsky ground with a chemist's precision (some go back to pre-World War I Munich days). The feeling of rigor remains, and the efficient craftsmanship. But the singing colors and rhythms are

Until Kandinsky's death, busband and wife had never been apart. In a sense Mrs. Kandinsky's ferocious devotion is a way of trying to fill the void, It is also a continuation of what she has always done.

"I consecrate myself as I al-ways have," she says. "But more than ever now because I am re-

Tammy Wynette Choked PEOPLE: In Brief Abduction

Bruised, bettered and choking from pantyhose tied tightly around her neck, country music singer Tammy Wynette was found staggering up a rural driveway after her release by a masked gunman she says tried to kill her. State inshe says tried to kill her. State investigators said the blond, 36-yearold singer told them she was abducted at gunpoint from a Nashville shopping center Wednesday afternoon and driven about 80 miles in her yellow Cadillac before being set free that night. She said the gumman made no threats or de-mands for money, and that he fi-nally left her in the car and fled in another vehicle. She was released in Giles County near the house of Junette Young, who said she cut a pair of panty hose from around Miss Wynette's neck. "It was real tight — I had to cut it off," said Mrs. Young "She just kept saying, 'He tried to kill me." State Safety Commissioner Joel Phummer said Miss Wynette's condition did not appear serious. "Apparently she was just slapped around some," Plummer said.

Bisexual bank robber John Wojtowicz, whose bizarre New York bank heist to pay for a sexchange operation for his boyfriend was the basis for the movie "Dog Day Afternoon," says he has to find work soon or go back to jail. Mrs. Kandinsky said.

Nina Kandinsky is still straight-backed. pretty, dark-haired; her blue eye shadow and fine jewelry should not be taken as signs of frivolity. She is one of that doughty breed, the artist's widow. "Kandinsky used to say widow. "Kandinsky used to say that if it were up to painters' wives to erect monuments, there wouldn't be space to move," she said some years ago. She is less humorous these days about what she considers her duty. The artist's widow is the guardian and administrator." she writes in her book. "She is courted, loved, coveted, detested, flattered and harassed. She is accused of heing despotic, avaricious and egocen-

Mrs. Kandinsky keeps a sharp eye on Kandinsky exhibitions, does a good deal of authentications of the Pompidou Center for a November exhibit of about 30 Kandinskys from Russia, possibly including her own

nal plans for her own collection, but in 1976 gave 30 Kandinskys to the Pompidou Center, becoming its biggest single benefactor.
